

Details of how to fill in the diary

It is very important that you do not change what you normally eat and drink just because you are keeping this record. Please keep to your usual food habits.

Each day is divided into sections, from the first thing in the morning to late evening and through the night.

When recording your food include the brand name (if known), portion size (using household measures, weights from labels, or the picture examples to help), any additions to the food (fats, oils, sugar/sweeteners, sauces, salt, pepper etc), cooking methods (fried, grilled, baked, roasted etc) and any leftovers.

Please record everything at the time of eating, not from memory at the end of the day. The diary covers a 24hr period, so please include any food or drinks that you may have had during the night. You might have had some foods and drinks between meals (snacks), or food that you have not recorded earlier, so please include these in the extra's section.

It helps a great deal if you enclose labels from any unusual foods and also from any supplements you take when returning your completed food diary.

Overleaf you can see two examples of how we would like you to record your food and drink intake.

Instructions for Weighed Food Diaries Only

If you are completing a weighed food diary, please try to weigh the food you have eaten wherever possible. If this is not possible, please use the instructions for estimating amounts of food, on pages 14–17.

Write down the weight of each food. For a meal, weigh the plate, then zero the scales. Add the first food and record weight and description of food (e.g. roast potatoes). Zero the scales again, add next food item, record weight and description (e.g. pork chop, fat removed). Continue until all food items are on the plate. After meal is completed, weigh plate with leftovers on it and note what was not eaten (e.g. fat from meat).

Use the pictures to help you to indicate the size of the portion you have eaten. Write on the food record the picture number and size A, B or C nearest to your own helping.

The pictures could also be used for foods not shown, e.g. pasta shapes similar to spaghetti, ham pie similar to quiche and peas similar to baked beans.

Remember that the pictures are much smaller than life size. The actual size of the dinner plate is 10 inches (25cm), the side plate, 7 inches (18cm), and the bowl, 6.3 inches (16cm).

The tables on pages 14–17 also give examples of foods that you might eat and how much information is required about them.
